I have very good news to report, but it is a little complicated as usual.

The U.S. Golf Association has provisionally told me that they think they are going to use the Sony Ranking System. They do not, however, want to issue a release endorsing the system which mentions the word Sony, so I think what they are probably going to do is to issue a release saying they will use the World Ranking System that has been sanctioned by the R&A.

From our standpoint, this is going to be perfect because after they have announced this, Sony is going to be able to announce that the Sony Ranking System has been adopted by the U.S. Golf Association.

I will keep you informed, and we can talk more about it in Scotland.

Regards.
